When a Door Becomes a Legend: Customizing Entrances in the Spirit of the Old West.

It's akin to wearing a designer original as opposed to a garment off the rack. Owners of fine homes can now make that focal point of all architectural features—the front entrance—an expression of their own personal style and taste, with a custom-crafted door steeped in the tradition of the American West. In fact, they can even commission a world-class artist to make their entrance a one-of-a-kind masterpiece.

It's all the handiwork of Legends Doors, a recently formed collaboration of master craftspeople who share a love of fine workmanship and a deep respect for the pioneering spirit and legends of Western lore. Legends artisans (for what they do goes far beyond carpentry) view a home's entrance as an extension of oneself—an outward expression of the warmth and hospitality within. They go to great pains to integrate the owner's individual preferences into the Western designs and decorative accents that make each door unlike any other.

Among the many styles that serve as launching pads for creative expression are saloon-type Dutch double doors, traditional arched entryways, rustic country doors and grand entrances flanked by glass sidelights and transoms. Each door is handcrafted of premium quality native woods, which include knotty alder, American cherry, maple, hickory, western pine, and eastern white pine. Superior stains and finishes add to their beauty and durability.

Very often, it's the personalized detailing and decorative hardware that define a Legends door. Stunning variations of vintage themes have included a wrought iron speakeasy grill, a novel trim of genuine Buffalo nickels, patterned glass evocative of a shimmering rainfall, and hand-forged Western-style knobs and hinges of bronze or brass.

But what really makes Legends Doors unprecedented in its craft is a special arrangement with two prominent Western artists who will work with a homeowner to create doors of consummate artistry and originality. David W. Jackson, a native of Ogden Utah, will transform a wooden door panel into one of his signature works of art—which include richly colored impressionistic paintings of aspen scenes, wildlife, still lifes, and country vignettes. Larry Nielson, another exceptionally gifted Utah artist, takes woodworking to new dimensions in the astonishingly lifelike mystical faces and frontier images he ushers forth from the very grain of the wood itself.

Legends Doors creates doors so unique in design and detail, they can even be patented! A full-color brochure is now available, which features many of the Western designs, detailing and variations they offer, while describing the high level of craftsmanship and care that defines their work.
